

Expiration Dates

Students are required by regulation to take an annual refresher course within one year of the date of their initial accreditation course to legally work in the State of Florida. There is an additional grace period of one year if a student is not working in the area. However, if the student goes over two years from the exact date of their initial course (or last refresher reaccreditation) they must take the initial course again.

This regulation applies to OSHA level courses as well.
